Health Care In Your Community Nurse Practitioner

Langley

Karl lives on the street. He needs a check-up to apply for a job.

Sadie is a low-income senior and uses the food bank often. She has trouble taking all her medicines.

Ming is a single mother. She lives with depression. She thinks she is pregnant.

Ingrid drinks alcohol every day. She smokes a pack of cigarettes each day. She is bothered with asthma.

George is addicted to pain killers. He has not worked for a year. He is not eating well.

All of these people live in Langley.

None of these people has a regular doctor.

Our nurse practitioner helps people like Karl, Sadie, Ming, Ingrid, and George get health care services they need until they get their own doctor or nurse practitioner.

How can I get health care services?

Like these people, you can get health care services from our nurse practitioner if you:

- ✓ live in Langley and
- ✓ do not already have your own doctor or nurse practitioner

We are here to help you if you:

- live on the street
- live with a limited income
- live with a mental illness
- use alcohol or drugs or both

We will see you for any current health needs until you have your own doctor or nurse practitioner.

What kinds of help can I get?

Here is what we do:

- Medical check-ups
- Help manage your medicines
- Arrange for blood work and x-rays
- Help you live with your health condition
- Give flu shots and other immunizations
- Connect you to support services in your community

For women, we offer birth control medicine and pap tests.

If you need to see a specialist, we arrange it.

Note: We do not generally prescribe narcotic pain medicines.
