

Healthy Snack Ideas

Snacks can be a part of a healthy diet. They can help satisfy your hunger between meals and provide energy to fuel physical activity.

When choosing a snack, aim for 15 grams of carbohydrate or less to help control blood sugar levels.

You may wish to have a protein only snack, or add a protein choice to your carbohydrate snack. Try pairing different protein choices and/or vegetables to your snack from the list below, as these foods minimally affect blood sugar and can help curb hunger.

Snacks with approximately 15 g of carbohydrates (Try adding a protein)		Protein Choices:
Grains	1 slice of whole grain bread	– eggs
	1/2 whole wheat English muffin	– peanut/ almond butter
	2 to 7 small whole grain crackers (see nutrition facts table)	– low-salt canned fish
	1/3 to 1/2 cup high fiber cereal (see nutrition facts table)	– chicken/ turkey slices
	2 to 3 cups of hot air popped popcorn	– cheese (examples: cheddar, edam, skim mozzarella) *Tip: Try cheese with <20% M.F.
Fruits	1 medium apple, orange or pear	– hummus
	1/2 banana	– plain Greek yogurt (< 2% M.F.) *Tip: flavor with cinnamon, vanilla extract, sweeteners
	1 cup of blueberries, melon	– cottage cheese
	2 cups of blackberries, raspberries or strawberries	– nuts *Tip: consume in moderation, 1/4 cup, as they can be high in calories, try unsalted
	15 grapes/cherries	– edamame *Tip: flavor with sesame oil/ fresh ground pepper
	2 medium kiwi	– unsweetened soy milk
	1/2 cup unsweetened, cooked or canned fruits (Note: if choosing canned fruits, choose those prepared in water instead of syrup)
Dairy	1 cup plain regular yogurt 2% M.F. (milk fat) or less	Other suggestions:
	1 cup milk (2% M.F. or less)	– add flavor and healthy fat with 1/4 to 1/3 avocado – add flavor with lemon juice, vinegar or spices/ herbs like dill, cumin, chili powder or basil

Other snack ideas

Vegetables	Examples: Carrots, celery, broccoli, bell pepper, snow peas, cucumber, tomatoes, mushrooms, zucchini Tips: <ul style="list-style-type: none">– Many vegetables are low in carbohydrates. You can eat plenty of non-starchy vegetables without raising blood sugar.– Try eating your vegetables with peanut butter, hummus or low fat dip (try Greek yogurt dip).
Calorie-Free Drinks	Unsweetened herbal tea, unsweetened sparkling water or water infused with herbs, lemon or lime

More Tips for Healthy Snacking:

- Try to be mindful with snacking. Sometimes we may snack due to boredom, stress, habit or even when we are thirsty.
- Keep healthy snacks in your bag, in your car, at your desk or at home.
- Choosing snacks that are high in fibre may help control blood sugars and can help you feel full. High fibre foods include: whole grains, vegetables, fruit, and plant-based proteins (chickpeas, almonds, soy nuts etc.)
- Some packaged foods may say low-sugar, sugar-free, or diabetes-friendly. However, they can still contain carbohydrates. Always check the nutrition label to find out the carbohydrate content.

Image by takedahrs from Pixabay
Image by Terri Cnudde from Pixabay
Image by Marcelo Kato from Pixabay